LETTER TO Editor

Dear Mr. Editor:

While spending a night in Hattiesburg, Miss., (Thurs., July 24th) I learned of a mighty important contest which was going to take place two days later on Saturday. This contest didn't take any space in the newspapers from the astronauts who had just arrived back to Earth safely, but to the nearby residents it was important, just the same. It was the annual National Tobacco Spitting contest,and the big news was that the man who had dominated the contest for a decade, but who lost the tittle last year, was to be on hand to try to recapture the crown. George Craft of Raleigh,Miss., is only 69 years old, but he has been chewing for 57 years, and he is giving special practice to the art this year. You might think a man who has been chewing and spitting for such a long time would know all there was to it, but he is still learning. How George Craft excels in the fine art of tobacco spitting is not exactly known, not even to George himself. He says that some days he does better than on others, sorta like a baseball pitcher who has his on and off days. When George was asked how he approached the line to spit in competition, he said that he just took a long step and turned it loose. He did impart this much information for neophyte spitters: He said that the trick to it is the knack of pressing your parted index and middle finger to the lips and letting the liquid tobacco spray through the fingers. He said that the pressure on the lips helps to force the juice out and into a fairly even stream. This must be good advice because Craft dominated the contests for a decade until last summer when a young man, from Eupora, Miss., Don Snyder, beat him out with a stream which travelled 23 ft., 9 1/4 inches. This won the contest for him, but did not beat Craft's record of some ten years ago of 24 ft., 10 1/2 inches. The big question around Raleigh, Miss., and Billy John Crumpton's Pond, five miles away where the contest was to be held, was whether Craft would regain his title. Along with the tobacco spitting contest, there were skillet-throwing contest for the ladies, coon-on-a-log contests,mule races and political speaking. If they had thrown in a good old Brunswick stew dinner it might have passed for a setting in Virginia. Craft, who lives with his wife, Viola, his mate of 46 years, and a son, Earnest, said he has practiced his accuracy on chickens that roamed too close to the porch. That's one way to have a live and moving target. Appomattox has had a few good tobacco chewers, too, in the past, although I do not know if they ever had contests for distance and/or accuracy. I can remember two big Appomattox chewers, R. W. Burkey, who for many years owned and operated Burkey's Store, located on Church Street just across from Poe Hardware; and Dr. David A. Christian, Jr., who could have won just about any contest which involved the amount of time he could hold a chew and the amount of amber which he could hold. I remember one winter's night around eight o'clock, about 38 years ago, when I went with Dr. Christian on a house call out in the country, and the roads were really icy and full of ruts. When we got to the patient's house, Dr. Christian went in, forgetting to spit out his chew and the amber. The patient had been injured in a sawmill accident which left him with several broken ribs and much lacerated flesh which had turned black and which Dr. Christian was going to scissor away. I was holding a lamp in one hand a pan which held the necessary tools with the other when Dr. Christian, ready to commence with the job at hand, looked around the room as thought searching for something. The lady of the house asked him what it was he wanted but Dr. Christian couldn't answer. Finally his eyes lighted up when he saw a bowl and pitcher on a washstand. (They would be antiques, now). He stepped over to the pitcher and let go with a stream which would have made Dr. Twyman green with envy. Then Dr. Christian turned to the lady and grinned as he said that he just couldn't tell her what it was that he wanted. But, back to the contest last July 26th in Mississippi: I haven't learned who won the contest that day, but I wouldn't be surprised but that the old pro was sitting on the throne that night.

The Pastor Speaks

"The Greatest Fool In Town"
11 Kings 20:1

". . . Thus saith the Lord, set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live."

There are few men who have ever received the "death sentence" without being upset, for death is never a welcome sight. Had not sin intervened, man would have been allowed to eat of the "tree of life" and would have maintained eternal, uninterrupted fellowship with God. It is no wonder therefore, that he now lives in fear from the ordeal of having his soul separated from his body. Christians, too, although they need not fear death itself, sometimes dread the approaching hour of "dying". King Hezekiah was a true Christian yet he was very disturbed when the prophet Amos told him that he would soon die. He was in Isiah 38:1-8 "Like a crane or swallow, so did I chatter, I did mourn as a dove". Hezekiah feared that final step even though he knew Glory lay beyond. How much more then should an unsaved man shutter! For after the brief pangs of his dying, there will be a whole eternity of terror and dispair. Only if our Spiritual house "is in order", only if we have obtained "the blood red ticket for eternal life" as a gift of Grace can we face the reality of death with calmness.

A great king once gave to his court jester a crude stick as a mock scepter and decided it was to be "the king of fools". "If you ever meet a greater fool than yourself," he said, "give him your scepter and title". Years passed by and the jester kept the stick. As the king was dying, he called for his fool and said, "I am going on a long journey. I must bid you a last farewell." "But where are you going", said the jester to the king, "and when will you return?" "I am going," said the king, "into a far country and alas, I shall never return." "And pray what provisions have you made for that journey into that far country?" With a deep solomn look on his face the king replied "None whatever -none whatever" "Then," said the court clown, "you had better take the fool's scepter that you gave me many years ago, for with all my folly, I am not as great a fool as you."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

THE CHOICE

Lesson for August 24. 1969

Background Scripture: Deuteronomy 9:1-5; Joshua 1; 3; 4:19-24 ;10:40-43; 14; 23 through 24.
Devotional Reading: Deuteronomy 9:1-5.

Can the church survive? There are many who are asking that question today. Some have already decided that the church is lost. Others are not certain, but are fearfully wondering. Headlines like these add to the uncertainty:

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP AND ATTENDANCE DECLINE AGAIN!
SHORTAGE OF MINISTERS AND PRIESTS TERMED "CRITICAL"
DOWNTOWN CHURCHES CLOSE DOORS!

These are but a few of the storm warnings being flown before the church today. There are many more, You could probably compile your own list. Some people are already calling this the "post-Christian era" indicating the blood red ticket for eternal life" as a gift of Grace can we face the reality of death with calmness.

Always Difficult

A great king once gave to his court jester a crude stick as a mock scepter and decided it was to be "the king of fools". "If you ever meet a greater fool than yourself," he said, "give him your scepter and title". Years passed by and the jester kept the stick. As the king was dying, he called for his fool and said, "I am going on a long journey. I must bid you a last farewell." "But where are you going", said the jester to the king, "and when will you return?" "I am going," said the king, "into a far country and alas, I shall never return." "And pray what provisions have you made for that journey into that far country?" With a deep solomn look on his face the king replied "None whatever -none whatever" "Then," said the court clown, "you had better take the fool's scepter that you gave me many years ago, for with all my folly, I am not as great a fool as you."

Friend, is your spiritual house in order? Do you know the Lord Jesus Christ as your Saviour? Are you prepared for the eternity that lies beyond the grave? Are you absolutely satisfied with your spiritual life? "Heaven is a prepared place for prepared people". Are you a prepared person?

"Oh, soul be thou ready,
No longer dispair,
There's mercy in Jesus,
Enough and to spare."

Revival Ends At Canaan

"In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes." Judges 21:25.

A week of revival ended Friday night, with four candidates for baptistism. The revival was enjoyed by all who attended. Rev. H. W. Fryer gave the lived soul - stirring messages each night. The visiting choirs were as followed: Monday night, Mt. Airy Intermediate Choir rendered music; Tuesday, Canaan Senior Choir; Wednesday, Union Hill Senior Choir, Buckingham; Thursday, Mt. Airy Jr. Choir; Friday, Mt. Airy Senior Choir. The offering raised during revival was $1,412.63. The Canaan Church would like to thank each church and choir for helping them during their revival.

We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Mary Morgan who passed away Sunday in the Lynchburg General Hospital. The Canaan Church would like to express their deepest sympathy. May God give you courage at this time. When you feel sad and lonely say this, prayer. God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change; The courage to change the things I can; and the wisdom to know the difference. Amen.

Social Security Questions & Answers

Send your questions toQuestions and Answers, Social Security Office, P.O.Box 2496, Lynchburg, Va. 24501.

Q. I think I may be eligible to receive benefits as a student. What are the basic requirements?

A. Assuming that you are the child of a retired, disabled, or deceased person who is insured under social security, benefits may be paid to you if you are: (1) 18 through 21 years of age; (2) a full-time student at an accredited school; (3) unmarried.

Q. My Mother is age 75. She applied for social security several years ago, but was denied. Her neighbor, who is about the same age, is receiving social security, and I know that neither she nor her husband ever worked under social security. Why can't my mother get social security too?

A. She may be able to qualify for a "special benefit" payable to persons age 72 and over who did not earn enough work credit to be insured under social security. This benefit may be payable if your mother is not receiving, or entitled to receive, a governmental pension or public assistance of more than $40 per month. She should check with her social security office for complete information.
